

Rationale

My color choices were not the same as those in my templates, simply because I couldn't find a header that incorporated those colors in a way that I would have liked. I'm hoping to be able to design a graphic by the time that my site is ready to go live, that can incorporate everything that I've done here, just with a bit more color.

Having said that, I'm pretty happy with the choices that I made. My favorite part is the font on the header. The "Welcome" portion font looks really cool and is akin to my favorite novel, The Great Gatsby. I chose a different font for my name which I think is elegant and fun.

I utilized my vast knowledge of Adobe Fireworks to enhance the fonts and images throughout the site and personalize them. I then put the comps together using 960 Grid and dragging them into Photoshop.

My husband noted a few things that I may have some struggles with (not impossible though), such as the images on the buttons of the writing page. I simply added those different images to mix it up and be a bit creative.

Whether any of these comps make it to the final page will be interesting, but all in all I'm really pleased with how it worked out.
